Re: Employee Performance Review for Non-Faculty Employees

In accordance with the Texas A&M University System Regulation 33.99.03, Performance Evaluation for Non-Faculty Employees, you are required to complete a performance evaluation for each non-faculty employee annually. The purpose of the evaluation is to inform each employee of the quality of his/her work, to identify those areas needing improvement, and to set specific objectives for the employee. In your position as a supervisor, this process will assist you in evaluating your workforce in identifying employee potential and establishing priorities for training, education and reward. Without proper feedback, an employee will not be able to meet your expectations, improve his/her performance, and progress in his/her career. Lack of proper feedback will diminish the productivity of your unit, which in turn, affects our own performance evaluation.

There will be two evaluations forms—one for employees without supervisory responsibilities and one for employees with supervisory responsibilities. To locate either form, go to the University web site; click on Forms, Policies and Reports; Forms Library; click on Human Resources Forms; and then choose the appropriate evaluation form. The form has two important features; (a) an opportunity to weight the performance factors in varying degrees according to the priority of the factor on the employee’s performance and goals, and (b) a requirement to include the coming year’s goals for the employee on the same form so that we can avoid the submission of multiple documents. The section in which you are required to review and update the employee’s position description questionnaire and have the employee sign and date the document is still a part of the evaluation form. Therefore, the form will accomplish three tasks: (1) the employee evaluation, (2) provide evidence that you have reviewed the job description with the employee, and (3) the setting of performance goals for the coming calendar year.

It is important to note that the employee should be evaluated for the period beginning January 1, 2009 and ending on December 31, 2009. The deadline for the submission of the completed forms is Monday, March 2, 2010. All forms should be sent to the Office of Human Resources. To meet audit requirements, we have established a number of mandatory training sessions for your assistance. All supervisors must attend one of them. The schedule for those sessions is provided below.
