

Publish & Flourish

Become a Prolific Scholar

Increase your productivity by a factor of three by taking these steps to becoming a prolific scholar. Many scholarly writers are educated at the School of Hard Knocks, but it's not the only school, or even the best. Much is known about how to become a better, more prolific scholar and anybody can. Even when you can't work harder, there are important ways to work smarter. Research points to specific steps scholars can take to become better, more prolific scholars, including:

- Write daily for 15-30 minutes
- Organize your paper around key sentences and a template
- Solicit the right feedback from the right colleagues

What participants say:

"Your methods changed my writing life. For the four years before the workshop, I wrote or revised 44 pages a year, but in the four years after, I wrote or revised 220 pages per year—five times as much!"

"In all honesty, you probably have provided me with all the tools I need to get tenure and even a full professorship."

Tara Gray serves as an associate professor of criminal justice and the founding director of the Teaching Academy at New Mexico State University. She has used these steps to publish three books, including Publish & Flourish: Become a Prolific Scholar. She has presented workshops to more than 5,000 scholars in more than thirty states, and in Guatemala, Mexico, Canada, Thailand, Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates. As a workshop presenter, Dr. Gray is "spirited, informative and entertaining—she's anything but gray!"

Every scholar can become more prolific.
What are you waiting for?

Sponsored by: PVAMU Center for Teaching Excellence, Office of Research and Title III

Text and Academic Authors, taaonline.net

Ballroom A, Willie Tempton Memorial Student Center
Monday June 30, 2014

10:00 am – 1:30pm (Lunch Included)

Reservations are required at: cte@pvamu.edu or 936.261.3640