

Frequently Asked Questions

Is there a cost to register for the conference?

No, the conference is free of cost.

What time does the conference start?

The conference is on April 10, 2023 starting at 9:00 AM (Central Standard Time). Convert to your local time here: <https://www.timeanddate.com/worldclock/meeting.html>

Is this conference open to visual and performing arts students?

Yes! We love to have visual and performing arts students participate in the symposium. You can register to exhibit photos of your work or videos of performances.

Can I attend if I am not presenting?

Most definitely! We would love to have you visit the showcase of student projects. You will be able to support your friends and classmates by simply visiting the poster sessions.

Can I submit a poster and abstract as a team?

Yes, for students working in a research team you can submit the abstract and list all of the co-presenter(s). While all research co-presenters may be listed on the abstract, only one student can present at the conference. If you want to make a group presentation, please let us know in advance.

What types of research can I present at the symposium?

Your research should be conducted under the guidance of your faculty mentor/advisor. This includes, but is not limited to, experimental design, case studies, randomized controlled trials, systematic reviews, meta-analysis, cross-sectional studies, ethnographic research, phenomenological research, etc.

What research topics can I present at the symposium?

The 2023 CISR will bring together students from a wide variety of backgrounds to explore a variety of issues such as reform, food security, institutional systemic racism, disaster relief, climate change, educational disparities and inequities, cybersecurity issues, public health, and a host of other issues related to this year's theme: Ready, Set, Connect! Emerging Researchers in an Evolving World.

What format is my presentation?

Undergraduate students will use a poster format; graduate students may elect to use a poster format or PowerPoint presentation. International students are encouraged to use the PowerPoint format.

Will participants receive feedback on their presentations?

Yes, the judges will complete an evaluation. Individual feedback will be disseminated to after the conclusion of the event, if desired.