

Google continuously holds events and activities for PVAMU CS students

As part of the partnership between Google and the Department of Computer Science, Google made a second visit to our department this fall on 10/22-10/24. They organized an interview workshop to explain how to prepare interviews from phone interview to on-site interview. There were about 30 Computer Science students attended the workshop. A couple of technical questions were discussed in detail, which gave our students a taste on the technical interview. Workshop attendees gave very positive feedback and showed their strong motivation to work hard in the classes they are currently taking and to start internship preparation and application soon. Additionally, Google set one-on-one office-hour session for our students, where the students got advice on how to improve their resumes and prepare for interviews. Our department will continue to work hard to strengthen the partnership with Google, hoping that more opportunities will be brought to our students. (By Dr. Na Li, CS Assistant Professor. 10/24/2019)
