About the Indian Society of Criminology

The Indian Society of Criminology, was started with the objectives of advancing the studies and application of criminology and allied sciences for the welfare of the society and for facilitating co-operation among the like-minded individuals interested in the prevention and control of crime. The Indian Society of Criminology was established in the year 1970.

The society has been seeking to attain its objectives by organizing annual conferences, periodical symposia, training programmes, outreach programmes and public lectures with themes of relevance and current interest in society, crime and its prevention and rehabilitation of the offenders, thus involving the people against crime and delinquency and also stimulating interest among the members of the Criminal Justice System in applying criminological approach to the problem of crime. The society has instituted various awards for recognizing and appreciating the active academicians and practitioners in India.

About the Department of Criminology, University of Madras

The University of Madras, established in 1857, is one of India's oldest premier universities and a pioneer in higher education and research. The University has made significant contributions to the cause of higher education and research in the country and is one among the first five universities to receive recognition from the University Grants Commission as a 'University with Potential for Excellence'. The University has forged MoUs with numerous foreign universities and industries and conducts over a hundred sponsored research projects.

An independent Department of Criminology was started by the University of Madras in April 1983 with functions of teaching and research. The Department of Criminology specializes in the field of crimes against women and children, victimology, juvenile justice, correctional administration, crime prevention, cyber forensics and others. The Department presently offers a Master's in Criminology & Criminal Justice Science, a Diploma in Juvenile Justice & Juvenile Psychology and a Ph.D. programme. The Department has signed MoUs with three international Universities. The Department is actively engaged in research projects funded by organizations such as UNICEF, United Nations Development Program, University Grants Commission, Bureau of Police Research and Development, Indian Council of Social Science Research, National Commission for Women, MasterCard Worldwide, Government of Tamil Nadu, and others. The Department also provides consultative and training services to the stakeholders of the criminal justice system, such as the Tamil Nadu State Judicial Academy, the Tamil Nadu Police, the Department of Children Welfare and Special Services, Government of Tamil Nadu and the Tamil Nadu Police Academy.
