Prairie View A&M University’s Whitlowe R. Green College of Education is excited to announce the Master of Education (MEd.) and Master of Science in Educational Administration (MSEd.) programs.

PROGRAM FEATURES

These Educational Administration programs prepare prospective school leaders to be change catalysts who turnaround schools and positively impact diverse student populations. Key features of both programs include:

• Accelerated course format available at the conveniently located Northwest Houston Center
• Complete required coursework in 1 to 1.5 years; classes are completed in 8-week blocks
• Affordably priced slightly under $9,500 (based on availability of funds and meeting scholarship criteria)
• Flexible schedule for the working professional with face to face and hybrid online coursework offered
• Cohort framework connects you to a successful network of professional school leaders and district administrators
• Graduates eligible to apply for the Principal Certification

MEd. PROGRAM

The Master of Education in Educational Administration (MEd.) is our non-thesis certification program designed to prepare educators for leadership positions in P-12 educational systems/settings. The program vigorously addresses the critical shortage of effective leaders in the field. This is a 36-semester credit-hour degree program; it includes a supervised internship. Classes (some are online) are offered at the Northwest Houston Center located at 9449 Grant Road, Houston, Texas.

ADMISSION REQUIREMENTS

• Valid teacher certificate.
• Teaching service record – two years of teaching experience preferred; applicants who have one year of teaching experience and are currently teaching will be considered.
• Official transcripts: GPA of 2.75 (below 2.75 may be considered under holistic review)
• Three recommendation forms/letters.
• Graduate Studies admission application – applytexas.org

MSEd. PROGRAM

Pending THECB and SACSCOC Notification

The Master of Science in Educational Administration (MSEd.) program is designed to prepare individuals for leadership roles in increasingly complex and diverse organizations. This 30-semester credit-hour program emphasizes organizational and instructional leadership to help students develop effective leadership skills. Course work includes advanced problem solving in supervision, data-driven decision-making, and research. Classes (some are online) are offered at the Northwest Houston Center located at 9449 Grant Road, Houston, Texas.

ADMISSION REQUIREMENTS

• Official transcripts: GPA of 2.75 (below 2.75 may be considered under holistic review)
• Three recommendation forms/letters.
• Graduate Studies admission application – applytexas.org

ACCREDITATION

All teacher education and graduate degree programs offered by the Whitlowe R. Green College of Education are fully accredited by the Texas State Board for Educator Certification (SBEC) and the Southern Association for College and Schools Commission on Colleges (SACSCOC). Graduate students seeking principal certification in the Educational Administration program must submit an Application for Candidacy after the successful completion of required core courses in the program. Students applying for admission to candidacy must have completed all initial admission requirements, and maintained minimum grade of “B” in all graduate courses (3.0 or above grade point average) before “Acceptance to Candidacy” can be established. A student admitted to full degree status by the Graduate Studies Office does not automatically become eligible for admission to candidacy in the principal certification program.
