STRATEGIES

Obtain essential practical experience through part-time or summer jobs such as camp counselor, tutor, or resident hall advisor.

Complete an internship for academic credit.

Gain experience through volunteering with organizations such as crisis hotlines, Big Brother or Sister, Special Olympics, service fraternities or sororities, etc.

Many entry-level helping positions require one year of related experience. Volunteer experience and internships can typically fulfill this requirement.

Learn to work well with different types of people.

Develop strong communication skills.

Cultivate the desire to help others.

Become fluent in a foreign language to serve clients who may not speak English.

Be willing to relocate for increased job opportunities.

Become familiar with government hiring procedures.

Acquire knowledge of government and community resources available for those in need.

Obtain a graduate degree in psychology, counseling, or social work for positions involving substantive counseling or psychotherapy or for advancement into administrative/supervisory positions.

Many specialties exist at the graduate level, for example school counseling, mental health counseling, counseling psychology, etc. Pursue particular degrees depending upon interests and career goals. See General Information on the last page for more details on this topic.

Maintain an excellent academic record and seek experiences valued by graduate programs.

STRATEGIES

- Develop career goals and seek relevant experiences to prepare for those goals.
- Earn a minor in business or supplement curriculum with business or communication courses.
- Obtain relevant experience through internships or parttime jobs.
- Work a part-time or summer job in a retail store.

 Demonstrate a willingness to take on additional responsibilities such as "assistant manager."
- Participate in student organizations and seek leadership roles.
- Learn to work well with different types of people. Develop a strong commitment to customer satisfaction.
- For sales, develop the ability to work well under pressure and be comfortable in a competitive environment.
- Be willing to start in a management-trainee program or other entry-level positions.
- When job searching, seek employers interested in hiring "any major."
- Understand the top skills employers desire and be prepared to demonstrate them, such as communication (oral and written), computer, interpersonal, leadership and teamwork, etc.

GENERAL INFORMATION

- Psychology provides a broad, liberal arts background.
- Some students may choose to study psychology because they enjoy the subject but wish to pursue careers requiring "any major." In this scenario, it is critical to develop desirable skills through internships, part-time or summer jobs, or volunteer experiences. Some skills valued most by employers include: communication, interpersonal, leadership, teamwork, and computer skills.
- Other students may major in psychology because they want to work in a related field. Many entry-level helping positions are available, however the amount of direct client contact is limited for those who have a bachelor's degree. Students may wish to pursue graduate education in psychology, social work, counseling, college student personnel, or other related fields to increase opportunities and earning potential. Research career fields to learn what type of degree (master's, educational specialist, doctoral) and subject area are most appropriate. The following list provides some examples:

Master's Degree

Licensed Clinical Social Worker

Professional Counselor

Educational, Vocational, and School Counselors

Substance Abuse and Behavioral Disorder Counselors

Rehabilitation Counselors

Licensed Marriage & Family Therapists

Educational Specialist

School Psychologist

Doctoral Degree

Counseling Psychologist Licensed Clinical Psychologist Experimental Psychologist

Sport Psychologist

Industrial/Organizational Psychologist

For those wishing to pursue graduate education, maintain a high grade point average, secure strong faculty recommendations, and gain experience through volunteer or work opportunities. Assist a faculty member with his or her research.
