Steps to Study Abroad

Step 1 - Properly Plan the Study Abroad Process
Proper and timely planning is essential to facilitate the study abroad process. Start the process early – the earlier the better. If possible, start the planning phase at least one year before your target study abroad date (for external programs). Planning for participation in a PVAMU faculty-led program generally does not require as much lead time, but adequate planning is still necessary. If possible, allow at least six months for PVAMU faculty-led programs.

Determine your eligibility to study abroad. Consult the Study Abroad web page of PVAMU International Affairs to see if you meet the criteria.

Schedule an appointment and meet with International Affairs staff in the planning phase to discuss your interests and to ask any questions that you may have about eligibility. Also, schedule an appointment and meet with your academic advisor to determine how study abroad can fit with your academic and professional goals.

Continue to meet with International Affairs staff and your academic advisor as needed throughout the process.

Step 2 - Determine Your Goals and Priorities
In deciding to study abroad, there are several factors to consider. Some of the questions to ask yourself in determining your goals and priorities are as follows:

Why do you want to study abroad and what do you hope to accomplish?
What do you want to study?
How does study abroad fit into your academic and professional goals?
What type of study abroad program are you interested in?
Where do you want to go? What countries interest you and why?
When do you want to go (i.e., the academic term) and how long do you want to stay?
How will you fund your study abroad experience?
What type of living accommodations do you want when you study abroad?
Do you want to study abroad on your own or with other PVAMU students?

Step 3 - Explore Your Options
Based on the answers to the questions in Step 2 and any other important considerations, research various programs and countries to determine which programs are the best choices for you.
If you have an interest in a PVAMU faculty-led program, you may want to talk with International Affairs staff, the professor(s) of the program(s), and your fellow students who have participated in a particular program to learn more about the program. The PVAMU faculty-led undergraduate study abroad programs are usually advertised on Campus Announcements and the Study Abroad web page of PVAMU International Affairs.

If you have an interest in an external program, there are several sources for you to consider. There are a variety of search engines for you to choose from including, but not limited to, those at: www.diversityabroad.com, www.studyabroad101.com, www.studyabroad.com, and www.iiepassport.org. Some of the websites contain general study abroad information as well as specific program information.

Another source for external programs is the Texas A&M University System (TAMUS) member universities such as Texas A&M University (College Station). Some of the TAMUS member universities have study abroad programs in which PVAMU students can participate. Please review the various TAMUS member university study abroad websites.

Also, the websites of various study abroad program providers are another source of external programs. The website links for the study abroad providers and organizations that participated in the previous PVAMU Study Abroad Fair can be found on the Study Abroad web page of PVAMU International Affairs.

Be sure to attend the PVAMU Study Abroad Fair (held annually during the fall semester) to find out about external and PVAMU faculty-led study abroad programs. You will have the opportunity to talk directly with representatives from various study abroad program providers, scholarship program providers, PVAMU faculty-led study abroad programs, and other organizational representatives.

Also, review the entry and exit requirements of the countries that you would travel to and travel through for the study abroad programs you are interested in. The entry and exit requirements can be found at www.travel.state.gov and the specific country’s embassy website.

Step 4 - Select a Study Abroad Program and Obtain Approval and Your Passport

External Programs

Select an external study abroad program. Ensure that you meet the external study abroad program eligibility requirements of the program that you select and the PVAMU study abroad eligibility criteria. Complete the Pre-Approved Transfer Credit Form and obtain signatures from your academic advisor, department head, and dean. In case some of the courses that you select are cancelled, seek approval on more courses than you intend to enroll in. Identify the extra courses as alternate courses. Provide course information and syllabi from the study abroad program provider or host university to the PVAMU academic officials to assist in evaluating the courses and determining if they are approved for transfer credit.
Steps to Study Abroad

Complete and submit the PVAMU Study Abroad Application by the deadline along with the Pre-Approved Transfer Credit Form to International Affairs. Ensure that you allow at least 30 days for the PVAMU Study Abroad Application approval process as study abroad eligibility criteria must be checked by various departments.

After obtaining approval from International Affairs to study abroad, complete and submit the external program application directly to the external program in which you are applying. Also provide a copy of the external application to International Affairs. It is a good practice to apply well ahead of the deadline as some programs may become full prior to the official deadline.

PVAMU Faculty-Led Programs

Select a PVAMU faculty-led program. Ensure that you meet the study abroad program eligibility requirements of the program you select and the PVAMU study abroad eligibility criteria. Consult with your advisor to determine if the program/course is suitable for your degree plan. Complete and submit the PVAMU Study Abroad Application by the deadline to International Affairs. Ensure that you allow at least 30 days for the PVAMU Study Abroad Application approval process as study abroad eligibility criteria must be checked by various departments. Provide any program specific paperwork to the PVAMU faculty-leader that is required. Obtain faculty leader approval if necessary.

If you have questions after you receive a determination on your study abroad application from International Affairs, please contact International Affairs. If you have questions about a determination received from a PVAMU faculty leader for a PVAMU faculty-led program, please contact the PVAMU faculty leader.

Obtain Your Passport

If you do not have a passport book already, do not delay in applying. Apply for a passport at least four months in advance. If a visa is required, you may need to apply for a passport earlier than four months in advance. If you have a passport, ensure that it is valid for the period you are to be abroad and for at least six months after your anticipated return date to the United States. Additionally, some countries require at least two blank visa pages in your passport. If you travel internationally on a frequent basis, you may need to obtain additional pages in your passport. Passport information can be found at www.travel.state.gov.

Step 5 - Apply for Financial Aid (if desired and if applicable)

Complete a study abroad budget. See the Study Abroad Budget Worksheet on the Study Abroad web page of PVAMU International Affairs. Schedule an appointment and meet with Financial Aid staff. During the meeting, provide the budget and inquire about options available for financial assistance. (You may choose to complete a budget worksheet and meet with Financial Aid when you are exploring options in Step 3 so that you are aware of the estimated total costs and potential financial aid available before you select a program.)

Apply for financial assistance if applicable. Consider external and internal sources of financial aid for the study abroad program that you have chosen. Apply for the PVAMU
Steps to Study Abroad

International Education Fee Scholarship (IEFS) if applicable. Apply early for financial aid. Please note that in some instances, you will need to apply for financial aid at the time that you apply for a study abroad program. Additionally, for the PVAMU faculty-led programs, you may need to apply for the IEFS award before acceptance in the PVAMU faculty-led program (depending on when the program occurs and other circumstances). Please pay close attention to Campus Announcements for the IEFS application posting.

Step 6 - Complete Post-Acceptance Paperwork and Requirements

Provide a copy of the following to International Affairs: 1) your external study abroad program acceptance notification or 2) your PVAMU faculty-led program acceptance notification if provided by the PVAMU faculty leader.

Complete the post-acceptance requirements for external programs including registration.

If you will study abroad through a PVAMU faculty-led program, register for the PVAMU course.

Pay balances associated with your study abroad program by the deadlines provided. Clear holds and outstanding balances.

Step 7 - Become Familiar With and Adhere to the Entry/Exit Requirements

Rereview the entry and exit requirements of the countries that you will be traveling to and traveling through for your study abroad program. There are many variables pertaining to entry and exit requirements (depending on the countries that you are traveling to or through and your country of citizenship).

Obtain Your Travel Documents

After you have your passport, if a visa is required, you will need to apply for your visa. Typically, you will apply for the visa after you have been accepted in a study abroad program. Obtain any other travel documents required.

Obtain a Medical Consultation

Review the travelers’ health recommendations and requirements at wwwnc.cdc.gov/travel. Make an appointment with your doctor to obtain the immunizations and medications that you need. You should see your doctor at least 6 weeks before you travel.

Also, check the country's requirements to determine which medications are allowed in the country along with the requirements for prescriptions and obtaining refills. Additionally, you may choose to travel abroad with a prescription for your eyeglasses or contacts in case you need to replace them while abroad.
Step 8 - Make the Necessary Arrangements
Arrange for your airline ticket, housing, in-country transportation, etc. if arrangements are not included in program. Also, ensure that your health insurance provides coverage abroad.

Enroll in the Smart Traveler Enrollment Program through the U.S. Department of State at www.travel.state.gov.

Make arrangements for your personal business as necessary before you leave.

Depending on the exchange rate, consider whether you want to convert some of your money before you go abroad.

If you are participating in a semester or academic year study abroad program, determine in advance how you will enroll in classes for the semester of your return, register for housing, make the necessary payments, etc. while you are abroad.

Check the airline rules on baggage allowance/size and security checkpoint regulations. Pack the appropriate attire based on the culture, climate, season, anticipated activities, etc. Check-in at the airport no later than the time required by the airline.

Step 9 - Complete Pre-Departure Paperwork and Requirements
Complete pre-departure paperwork including a release, indemnity agreement, and emergency notification. Purchase and enroll in Cultural Insurance Services International insurance (supplemental insurance) through PVAMU.

Complete PVAMU requisite training and attend a mandatory PVAMU pre-departure orientation. Read all documents that are provided. Prepare for your study abroad experience by reading about the culture, history, politics, and economy of your study abroad country.

Provide a copy of your itinerary and flight information along with a color copy of your passport photo page to International Affairs. (The faculty leader for the PVAMU faculty-led program will collect the passport photo page color copy from you and will provide the itinerary and flight information to International Affairs if group travel arrangements are made.)

Step 10 - Complete Post-Travel Requirements and Fulfill Study Abroad Purpose
For external programs, notify International Affairs staff when you arrive at the study abroad program site and keep in contact with International Affairs throughout your term abroad. Notify the consulate’s office or embassy of your visit (not applicable for short-term programs).

Fulfill your study abroad purpose. Do not change courses without prior approval. Adhere to the enrollment requirements of PVAMU, the study abroad program, and host university.
Steps to Study Abroad

Provide a copy of your Study Abroad Program enrollment to International Affairs (not applicable for PVAMU faculty-led programs).

Arrange for your return in a timely manner (e.g., airline tickets, etc.).

Before returning from your study abroad program, please arrange to have an official transcript from the study abroad program or host university submitted to the PVAMU Office of the Registrar (applicable for external programs).

Complete and submit the post-study abroad report within two weeks of your program ending date.

Note:
Depending on the program that you choose and your individual circumstances, the steps may vary. In all cases, a PVAMU application must be submitted and approved prior to study abroad.

Travel to a country with a U.S. Department of State Travel Warning will not be approved.
