GAINES GRADUATE SCHOLARS
TEACHING EXCHANGE PROGRAM

The Teaching Exchange Program allows advanced doctoral students at PVAMU and TAMU to engage in a semester long professional development series aimed at creating community and learning more about diverse learners at the partner institution.

In the semester following, students will be paid to teach an undergraduate course in their field of expertise at the partner institution. Students will be supported throughout the experience by the Graduate and Professional School at TAMU and the Office of Graduate Studies at PVAMU.

Students selected for a pilot of this program for the 2022-2023 academic year will be named Gaines Graduate Scholars, honoring the legacy of Senator Matthew Gaines and will receive a $750 stipend in the fall semester from their home institution. In the spring, students will be paid to teach an undergraduate course by the host institution.

Benefits to the Student:

- Expand potential for becoming a faculty member/researcher
- Develop teaching experiences in a different setting
- Expand mentoring relationships with faculty at another institution
- Engage in meaningful professional development throughout the program
- Connect with faculty to expand research collaborations

For more information please contact your university representative or to apply visit: http://tx.ag/GainesScholars

Prairie View A&M University
Tyrone Tanner
Dean
Office of Graduate Studies
tytanner@pvamu.edu
936-261-3518

Texas A&M University
Julie Harlin
Associate Dean
Graduate and Professional School
j-harlin@tamu.edu 979-845-0000