

Instructor Bio:

My name is Dr. Munir Quddus. I want to share that I have a doctoral degree in economics from Vanderbilt university, and have taught for more than 20 years in a number of colleges and universities, including overseas. I love teaching, and love the discipline of economics. My favorite subject is history – fortunately, there is something called economic history, and the history of economic ideas. I have researched and written in both fields. I look forward to working with you for your successful learning in this course.
